

Viewbiquity and Clear2there Team Up To Sponsor IndyCar's Marco Andretti

Deerfield Beach, FL and Oklahoma City, OK May 19, 2011—Viewbiquity, a leading provider of advanced M2M (Machine to Machine) solutions for service providers and enterprises, and its master distributor, Clear2there, have announced a joint sponsorship of IndyCar driver Marco Andretti for the 2011 racing season. As part of the sponsorship, both Viewbiquity and Clear2there logos will be included on Andretti's racing suit.

Marco Andretti, grandson of racing legend Mario Andretti, has been tearing up the racing circuit with top-ten finishes in eleven races in 2009 and eight races during the 2010 season. His team is well positioned for an exciting run for the top prize in 2011. The 2011 race season in the US kicks off with the 100th anniversary of the iconic Indy 500 on Memorial Day weekend, followed quickly by the Firestone Twin 275s at Texas Motor Speedway on June 11 where Andretti will begin sporting the logos of both sponsoring companies on the sleeves of his fireproof racing suit.

"Sponsoring a rising star like Marco Andretti is an exciting way for Clear2there to get the word out about Viewbiquity's exciting M2M solutions for all types of businesses," said Greg Mantia, Clear2there CEO. "We are pleased to support Marco and his team, and look forward to a mutually successful partnership."

"While it may seem somewhat out of character for a technology company to sponsor a racing team, we see a lot of synergies between Viewbiquity and the Marco Andretti team," remarked Tom Shafron, CEO of Viewbiquity. "The success of our respective organizations is built upon passion, commitment, and clearly differentiating ourselves in very crowded fields. We are delighted to join forces with Marco and his entire organization, and give the Andretti team our full-fledged support for the coming season."
